Employment History

Over the years I have worked in numerous industries, and have travelled. Despite the impact that the UK recession has had on my full time, permanent employment prospects, I have remained highly motivated in taking on a breadth of employment and qualification-gaining opportunities, both paid and voluntary. This pro-active approach has carried over to my living here in Australia, where I have chased opportunities and have had numerous fantastic experiences as a result.

I am a very hands on and physically active person, and thoroughly enjoy learning new skills and meeting new people. My varied work environments have made me flexible, adaptable, and a strong team player.
